Tech Info Library

MacX: Can Be Used to Launch Local Xclients

```
Revised:        10/1/91
Security:       Everyone
```

MacX: Can Be Used to Launch Local Xclients

```
=====================================================================
```

```
Article Created: 20 August 1991
Article Last Reviewed:
Article Last Updated:
```

TOPIC --

If I don't have an Ethernet card, can I run MacX to launch local Xclients?

DISCUSSION ---

Yes, but you must be running under A/UX (not Macintosh OS) and specify "localhost" as the hostname.

You can use a name other than "localhost" if you edit the "/etc/hosts" file and add the name you want to use to the line for the loop address.

Copyright 1991, Apple Computer, Inc.

Tech Info Library Article Number:8847