

Tech Info Library

PowerBook 500: Method For Best Quality When Recording (4/95)

Revised: 4/5/95
Security: Everyone

PowerBook 500: Method For Best Quality When Recording (4/95)

=====
Article Created: 05 April 1995

TOPIC -----

I'm trying to record a signal from an external CD-ROM to my PowerBook 500 but the record level is quite low. I have selected "Line In" in the Sound control panel but that doesn't help. This even happens when recording beep sounds in the Sound control panel.

DISCUSSION -----

To get the best recording from an external audio source, it is best to use a capable piece of software to do it, preferably software with an "auto gain" feature.

You can use the software you're recording with to amplify the sound after it's been recorded, although this may create some distortion. The Sound control panel does not have an "auto gain" feature so it will not be sufficient to record sounds at the best quality.

Support Information Services

Copyright 1995, Apple Computer, Inc.

Tech Info Library Article Number:17522